Photography and video

This expedition is part of Ocean Geographic’s ongoing photographic assessment which contributes to a visual database of the marine environment of the world. Specifically we are setting up an Ocean Health Photographic Index for the Arctic. A selection of imagery from the expedition shall be contributed towards the initiation of this archive. This archive will be made available for educational and scientific reference of the European Arctic for climate change study. If you are a photographer or videographer, artist and wish to contribute to this archive, please let us know. You will be in any case welcome to participate in this momentous expedition and enjoy one of nature’s most spectacular wilderness areas in pristine condition. You will also be able to see the production of Elysium first hand, in real time and share quality time with the principal team.

Safety

This expedition travels to remote areas without sophisticated medical facilities. Although the ship has a qualified physician and basic supplies, the nearest medical facility is many hours, or even days away. We will ask that you complete a confidential medical report upon acceptance as a team member. This expedition is intended for persons in reasonably good health. If you are not fit for expedition travel including disability, heart or other health conditions, you can participate as ‘Friend’ of Elysium –sign up at www.elysiumepic.org. Please note that medical evacuation and repatriation is expensive. It is mandatory to take out medical insurance that will cover these costs.
